George Washington Institute for Religious Freedom
Ambassador John L. Loeb, Jr., Chairman
50 Broad Street, Suite 1137
New York, New York 10004

Dear Ambassador Loeb:

Thank you for your recent letter regarding the George Washington Institute for Religious Freedom and George Washington's 1790 letter on religious freedom. The message of this letter is the same American belief in religious tolerance and understanding that we promote in Turkmenistan on behalf of the United States Government and people.

We look forward to publicizing the George Washington letter as part of our broader outreach on religious freedom next month on the occasion of Washington's birthday and on other future occasions.

Sincerely,
